Proposals are invited that address the broad theme of intersectionality or the complex multidimensional lens of interconnectedness as individuals within societies. Our identities are shaped by intersectional bonds of gender, class, ethnicity, residence, lifestyles, perceptions of positive or traumatic memories, parenting, childhoods, education, work, family...the list itself is extensive. The term “Intersectionality” reflecting multiculturalism, diversity, inclusion, or cultural competence was coined in 1989 by Kimberlé Crenshaw, a civil rights activist and legal scholar and published in a paper for the University of Chicago Legal Forum. It has since morphed into its present concept of multidimensional connectivity. Please ensure your proposals are complete and submit on the downloadable form below.

Please Complete and Return
