GRADUATE DEGREES FOR SOCIAL CHANGE

Adler University is dedicated to training socially responsible practitioners, creating real change in our communities, and advancing social justice. We believe that responsible practitioners must do more than address mental health and well-being at the individual level – we need to create an environment for wellness by advocating for a more just society.

Master's and/or doctorate programs in:

- Art therapy
- Clinical mental health counseling
- Clinical psychology
- Couple and family therapy
- Counselor education and supervision
- Forensic mental health leadership
- Public policy & administration
- Sex therapy (certificate)
- Sport & human performance

“I want to be challenged and find my purpose in the world. The faculty members at Adler University are people who have made this possible by fostering my growth while connecting me with opportunities all over the world.”

- Elaine Carey, Chicago Psy.D. graduate

DEAR IPA MEMBERS AND COLLEAGUES,

Welcome to the 2024 Illinois Psychological Association Convention!

On behalf of the IPA leadership and the Convention Steering Committee, I want to welcome you to the annual IPA Convention, with my excitement and enthusiasm for our annual convention! I also want to express my appreciation for your support for our convention and attending the annual meeting. I am proud of a wonderful program we have this year and confident that everyone will be able to find programs that are relevant, meaningful and educational to further your professional development.

I would like to express my gratitude to my convention Co-Chair, President-Elect Dr. Kristina Pecora as well as to the members of the Convention Steering Committee: Drs. Erin Alexander, Hayley Bemel, Ivelisse Burgo, Jenine Chiles, Manisha Dayal, Colin Ennis, Holly Houston, Hayley Beth Van Serke and Hana Simon.

There are many rapid changes happening in our profession as well as in our country at large. The United States presidential election will occur just a few days before our annual convention. Political stress impacts many people's well-being regardless of their political beliefs. Moreover, there are significant changes happening in our profession, such as the potential use of AI in teaching and clinical practice. The role of master level clinicians in our profession may be shifting. To understand and prepare for these potential changes, we will offer programs that delve into the complex layers of these potential changes.

Similar to last year, we have various IPA sections sponsoring particular programs that are more reflective of their members' interests. It is fantastic that some sections have collaborated to produce programming that is not only innovative but cutting edge. I am especially excited about our keynote presentation by Dr. Jared Skillings, APA's Chief of Professional Practice. Dr. Skillings has dedicated his career to advocating for the profession of psychology through improving access to psychological care, reimbursement advocacy, and advancement of science and training. He will discuss the current state of our profession and how we might prepare for all the changes that will come our way. All hours of the convention you attend will be available for Continuing Education Credits, including state mandated credits on Ethics, Multicultural Competency, and Alzheimer's Disease. In addition, you are invited to the President's Reception and Student Poster Presentation on Friday evening to relax and connect with your colleagues with hors d'oeuvres and drinks before the convention concludes. It is worth noting that, this year, we have an unprecedented number of student posters from various universities. Students are our future; I hope that you will consider attending the poster session during the reception to support and encourage our graduate students.

I am so looking forward to seeing all of you at the convention. It promises to be an engaging and inspiring conference experience!

Sincerely,

Sue Bae, PhD
President and Convention Committee Chair

DEAR MEMBERS, GUESTS, AND HONOREES,

It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to the Illinois Psychological Association's Annual Conference. As the Executive Director, it is an honor to see so many esteemed colleagues, dedicated professionals, and passionate advocates for mental health gathered here today.

This year holds special significance for our organization, as it marks the first time in our history that the Illinois Psychological Association is led by two women of color: myself as Executive Director and Dr. Sue Bae as President. In a year when the national conversation has been deeply engaged with issues of diversity, equity, inclusion, belonging and the potential ascension of a woman of color to the White House, we are particularly excited about this milestone. It reflects our commitment not only to advancing the field of psychology but also to fostering leadership that is as diverse as the communities we serve.

We are especially thrilled to welcome our keynote speaker, Dr. Jared L. Skillings, whose insights and expertise will undoubtedly inspire us all as we navigate the evolving landscape of psychology.

I would also like to extend a warm welcome to our distinguished honorees at this year's awards luncheon: Senator Karina Villa, Representative Lindsey LaPointe, and Dr. Colin Ennis as well as those recognized for their advocacy for mental healthcare accessibility. Their outstanding contributions to the field of mental health and their unwavering commitment to the well-being of our communities have set a standard of excellence that we are proud to celebrate.

This conference is more than just a gathering; it is a testament to the strength and resilience of the profession. It is an opportunity to share knowledge, foster collaboration, and renewed commitment to the vital work you do every day.

Thank you for being a part of this event and for your continued dedication to advancing psychological practice and mental health advocacy in Illinois. I look forward to the meaningful discussions and connections that will emerge from our time together.

With warm regards,

Litesa Wallace, EdD
Executive Director
Illinois Psychological Association

“PSYCHOLOGY—State of the Profession”

This CE session will be delivered by the APA Chief of Professional Practice. It will provide psychologists, practice owners, educators, and trainees with up-to-date information about important issues impacting the profession of psychology. This session will help attendees get a renewed sense of the ‘big picture’ for our profession and where things may go in the future. The focus areas will include health, business, workforce, and technology. The session is based on new scientific research, ethical and human-rights perspectives, and updated legislative/legal/regulatory decisions at the federal and state levels.

INVITED PRESENTER

Jared L. Skillings,
PhD, ABPP

Dr. Jared Skillings is a triple board-certified psychologist, licensed in Virginia and Michigan. He serves as the Chief of Professional Practice for the American Psychological Association (APA) since 2018. He oversees psychology’s 120,000-person workforce and leads national strategies to promote the work of psychologists, prepare the profession for the future, and improve population health. These efforts include improving access to psychological care; reimbursement advocacy; developing guidelines; strengthening 60 state, provincial, and territorial psychological associations (SPTAs); coalition building; policy development; and media engagement.

As an advisor to the White House and Center for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), Dr. Skillings has contributed to solving some of society’s most pressing needs. He has amassed over 2 Billion media impressions through interviews with the NY Times, CNN, FOX, USA Today, NPR, and others.

IPAGS Program Presentation: Early Career Psychology

Psychologists are known to face a multitude of challenges in their careers (Kolar et. al., 2017) but the experiences unique to psychologists who are in early, transitional phases of their career deserve more empirical attention than is currently available (O'Connell et. al.,2023). It is useful to examine the specific themes of obstacles and issues that early career psychologists tend to come across in order to illuminate the step-by-step trajectory from graduate school to becoming an expert, licensed clinical psychologist. This may be of practical use to emerging, early career psychologists, as well as later career psychologists who can use such information to guide philosophy and subsequent implementation of supervision and training techniques in an ever-changing field (Smith & Thew, 2017; Thexton, 2022).

Are YOU interested in IPA Leadership? Are YOU interested in Developing your Leadership Skills?

If you answered YES to these questions, please consider making application to the Leadership Development Program of the Illinois Psychological Association.

Overview

The Leadership Development Program (LDP) of the IPA is a program designed to engage and educate future leaders of IPA. Participants will be chosen via application and interview. Acceptance into the program is a one year commitment followed by participation in IPA committee work with the intention to eventually run for an IPA Council position. This is an excellent opportunity to develop leadership skills to be utilized in IPA, as well as in the future for personal and professional application in academic settings, administrative clinical settings or other board positions.

- monthly meetings will be held. Some in person, some virtual.
- monthly topics to be covered: leadership assessment with feedback of strengths and areas for development; review of IPA Bylaws, policies and procedures; association history; association finances and fiduciary responsibility; a mock council meeting; mentoring; an association project.
