About the Workshop

The current sociopolitical climate has created many hurdles for Muslim Americans. They now face a challenge of preserving their own religious and cultural identity while attempting to integrate into the mainstream American culture. The goal of this workshop is to educate the attendees on these challenges and effective approaches to take towards clients.

Learning Objectives

Participants will be able to:

1. List 3 psychosocial problems prevalent within Muslim communities and list their perceived origins.
2. Identify 3 common challenges to doing therapy with Muslim clients and strategies to overcome these challenges
3. Identify 3 culturally competent approaches to improve therapeutic relationship and effectiveness of therapy with Muslim clients

THE PRESENTERS

Fahad Khan, Psy.D.

Dr. Fahad Khan has a Doctorate in Clinical Psychology and a Master's degree in Biomedical Sciences. He currently serves as the Deputy Director of Khalil Center, a spiritually-congruent wellness center. He has studied Islamic studies with various scholars in the Muslim world and the US. He is a faculty member at Concordia University Chicago and College of DuPage. He has conducted research studies on help-seeking attitudes of Muslim Americans as well as the effects of Acculturation & Religiosity on Psychological Distress. The primary focus of his practice has been with Muslims suffering from serious mental illnesses.

Hooman Keshavarzi, M.A.
